About Italy

Welcome to Italy, one of the world's most bewitching countries, rich culture and blessed with some of the most beautiful vistas, dramatic mountain ranges, fine sandy beaches and fragrant landscapes. Italy is a country of many contrasts, awash with spectacular architecture, historical monuments, picturesque piazzas, archaeological sites, museums and art galleries designed as a testament to the genius of Italy's famous sons such as Michelangelo and Da Vinci, more recently we can also add the internationally revered fashion houses of Milan. Add to this the delightful traditional villages, vibrant cities, exhilarating ski-slopes and kilometres of sublimely diverse coastline.

Italy comprises of twenty different regions each with its own individual character. In the north, the region of Veneto covers the Dolomites, Verona, Padua and Venice. Most UK and US visitors are familiar with the landscape of Tuscany, especially the world famous Campo dei Miracoli (leaning Tower of Pisa) and the shops on the Ponte Vecchio. The sense of history is pervasive and it is impossible to choose between the architectural delights of Rome, fashion in Milan, the sight of Pompei, the sophisticated city of Naples and the Amalfi coast. However, there is now another attraction to consider, in the south western corner in the 'toe' of Italy,

Calabria has long been popular with Italian tourists, however it has recently come to the attention of overseas tourism and developers. The area has seen a steady in interest from European tourists attracted by the natural beauty of the area and also the noticeably improved amenities and infrastructure. One of the many surprises of this stunning region is the existence of lakes, forests, wetlands, mountains and ski slopes in the Sila district. A wealth of wildlife, woodlands, contrasting with the endless sandy beaches and due to its 'mezzogiorno' location (below Naples) it is blessed with some of the hottest weather in Italy and a fantastic year round Mediterranean climate.

Calabria

Calabria, situated in the south western corner of Italy, south of Naples, with only the Strait of Messina separating it from the delightful island of Sicily, is one of Italy's best kept secrets amongst the multitude of Italian's looking to escape the heat of the city during the month of August however it is only recently that the region has come to the attention of overseas investors and tourists. The character of this beautiful region is formed by its breathtaking disparate landscape of mountain ranges; Aspromonte and Serre to the south and Pollino to the north, the central Sila plateau and miles of coastline with unspoilt sandy beaches, secluded coves, dramatic cliff faces and charming traditional villages and established resorts such as Scalea, Tropea and Zambrone, where everything stops for siesta. The region comprises five provinces, each with its distinctive character.

Consenza, one of the largest towns of the area, is famous for historical old town with the cathedral which claims to house the grave of Isabel Aragon, twelfth century castle, the historic Piazza XV Marzo and the University of Calabria dating back to the ancient Greeks. It is also the best point from which to discover La Sila National Park, which can be reached from Consenza by train, offering a beautiful countryside of lakes, waterfalls, dense forestation, home to many species of wildlife and birds. Tropea, the most popular amongst Italian tourists, conveys a sense of history and grandeur, boasting pristine beaches, a patchwork of fragrant cypress, citrus and olive groves and spectacular views from the ancient hilltop castle across to the ring of smoke above the volcano at Stromboli. Sila Grande an area reminiscent of the Alps boasting a unique landscape of dense forestation, waterfalls and lakes with stunning sea views and the snow capped mountains of Sila Grande. In the winter the stretch between Monte Curcio and Monte Botte Donato boasts a fantastic cross country ski run. Accessing Calabria has never been easier, served by airports at Reggio Calabria, Crotone and a third at Lamezia Terme.

I våra kontakter med Windrush har vi alltid upplevt stor tillit och ett förtroendefullt bemötande.

The Buying Process – Why Italy?

Although the buying procedure in Italy is relatively straightforward, we strongly recommend that you appoint a reputable international law firm who will check the legal status of the property you wish to buy. We can introduce you to a number of qualified legal experts who will be able to explain the entire buying process.

- As soon as you have made a verbal agreement to purchase your property, your solicitor will then make sure that the title of the property is checked and where applicable that building licences and permissions are in order.
- If buying a resale property it is strongly recommended that you appoint a surveyor to inspect the property and to highlight any problems and give you an up-to-date insight of any future planned developments in the area.
- A sale agreement will be drawn up, a contract between the seller and purchaser. This will give details of the completion date, payment schedule and terms and conditions. The solicitor, legal translator, buyer and seller will sign the sale agreements, and each party will get the sale agreement in Italian, English and the appropriate language of your country of residence.
- To ensure that a new build is taken off the market and to freeze the price of the property, you will then normally pay a €3,000 reservation fee, followed by a deposit within 28 days. This may differ depending on your development of choice. Resale's tend to be 10% deposit and 90% payable on completion.
- Each of these transactions is handled by an independent lawyer who's fully qualified and highly experienced in both International and Italian property law.
- To ensure you're clear with the process from the word go, your lawyer will talk you through every step.
- As specified by Italian law, 100% of your money is guaranteed by an insurance bond, which ensures that all monies are returned in the event of unforeseen building or other difficulties - All building work comes with a ten-year guarantee.

Enjoy your new home!
